

Good evening all,

OMG!!!! I am still stuffed from yesterday's Progressive Dinner Ride. Everything was delicioso! Starting out with 12 bikes we rode out of the dealership to our first stop. Gary and Kerry had a spread of appetizers such as chips/queso, crackers, spinach dip, chipolte dip, sausage bites with a variety of sauces and plenty of cold refreshments. We had such a great time it almost felt "holidayish". Ummm . . . perhaps the huge Christmas tree in the living room had something to do with this. A big beautiful tree with a train running in and out through it's branches! Pretty amazing actually! Gary said it took him 4 weeks to put the tree together so he was not about to take it down and it's been there ever since, and the decorating never ends as they continue to add to it.

Next, Bob and Lucy waited for us with "fresh off the grill" rib eye steaks, baked potatoes w/ all the fixin's, seasoned green beans, rolls and plenty of cold refreshments. We were soooo stuffed we're thinking that the next Progressive Dinner ride has to include a nap about this time. It was a little hard having to get on the bikes but we did and off we went to deserts.

Thank goodness we had to travel across one end of San Antonio to the other because we needed that time to make room for desert but as the jingle goes, "There's always room for JELLO!". Greg and Ana topped our dinner off with refreshing jello and whipped cream parfaits and that was just the beginning. It was desert heaven as they also had cookies, brownies, two different cakes and plenty of cold refreshments.

(Have you noticed the pattern of cold refreshments at each stop? So I don't have to mention it but I will anyway, IT WAS %*#@! HOT!)

Well the best of refreshments was yet to come! The last stop lasted until 1:00am! Lot's of every one's favorite alcoholic beverages. I wish I could go into detail about it but no one's talking. Apparently, what happens at the last stop, stays at the last stop.

Thanks to all who invited us into their homes! We learned a little about each of our hosts. Gary has an obsession with trains, Bob has the cleanest house in San Antonio, Ana (who we know cannot cook) can't even boil water for jello without burning herself and Venita, well she's saved because, as everyone should know by now, my bedtime is 10pm and I couldn't make the last stop.

This week's fun schedule is:

Fri., 4/27 - Bike Night; destination TBD; ksu 7:00pm

Sat., 4/28 - Three Sisters; ksu 9:00am

Last but not least . . . WE FOUND STEVE! Steve, you've been a great sport! Glad to have you safely back home.

Until next week . . . color me outie!
