

Poetry and Harley's Don't Mix...

A grand time was had at Taco Haven, but the outdoor poetry readers across the way didn't think so.

What we did last week:

Our awesome activities ladies put together a gathering Friday night at Taco Haven. In all, 22 folks attended and enjoyed the great atmosphere and live music. A few of you chose to ride your bikes. Rumor has it; the poetry reading group thought the addition of that distinctive Harley sound was not a good fit to their presentations. I suspect future readings will be indoors.

Frank "Soul Sucker", soon to be renamed "Wrong Way", took 8 of us on a non-chapter ride to Rockport via Victoria. We visited two dealerships and had a great feast at The Big Fisherman. It only took 6 U-turns to get us there and I only got left behind twice. Chapter rides are much nicer. Speaking of...
