

LOH Ride Beat The Weather

What we did last week:

Once again the first Saturday of the month has passed with a successful social and a nice LOH ride to the Gristmill for some great food and friendship. Thanks Ana for leading 13 bikes and 17 souls out there for good food and good times. They even seated our party of 17 right away; how's that for service. We must have looked like a fun group because we even had someone join us there and back so make that 14 bikes. I think he had a good time and we may be seeing him again.

In other news:

A healthy respect for a rainbow...

Imagine you're headed home from Caliente after a fun ride. It has been misting a little but the roads have been fine. Suddenly, it begins to rain. You are approaching a red light and apply the brakes only to find both your wheels are skidding and you can't stop. You probably forgot that those first few minutes of rain bring up the oil on the road making it unusually slick! Don't ignore that telltale rainbow you see or it could be the last thing you see. Slow down when the rain starts. Seriously slow, like way way under the speed limit. Trust me.

Your Squirrel
