

I hope I got this right.

What we did last week:

On Wednesday, 14 souls had an education in "whiskey" or "whisky" depending on where it is made. We learned the history of the distilled beverage and were treated to six different varieties from around the world. There was a lot of I don't really care for this one but there was not too many empty glasses when it was all said and done. I think personally I am going to stick to good ole No. 7. Thank you Merry for setting this up for us.

On Saturday, it was cloudy but 12bikes and 17 souls gathered and headed for the Airport Diner in Fredericksburg. It teased us with a little sprinkle as we approached the first fuel/rest stop but was more of an annoyance than a concern. The cages were being their normal idiots selves and kept breaking into the formation and trying to take our lane but we held our ground and prevailed.
