ODDS AND ENDS

As the sun rose over Caliente Harley, the crowd grew restless with party hats, confetti, Horns and other objects of celebration at the ready. Nine riders, 3 bikes and 5 trikes, glistened in the sun, and with chrome blinding the audience and the roar of stereos, set off with a bang on a 3 hour tour. As the crowd went nuts, the haphazard gang pulled away from safety following Mitch on his maiden voyage. Oddly he kept shaking his head in wonder that anyone would allow him to lead them anywhere. Within 5 miles, we stopped for a bathroom break and all hope was lost. Something like 2 hours and 100 miles later, we found a Tropical Paradise, known as Toucan Jim's Pirate Paradise. After over 10,000 pictures, we set off, rumless, for home. BT provided sweep services, but no rum, no sweep ups. We encountered many tight turns, big tall trees, deer, and all strange creatures of the road, we returned like a ride at Disneyland. Thanks to all riders for your patience and comments.

From little old me, Mitchie Poo
